Why invest in durable businesses now?

Equity investors tend to consider high returns and downside mitigation to be mutually exclusive. The pursuit of high returns often drives investors towards growth or value disciplines, both of which can be volatile. The quest for downside mitigation often leads investors to blue chips, which have historically had less volatility but also less upside optionality in strong economic or market environments.

We believe that we are in an environment of higher inflation, higher interest rates, shorter cycles, increasing geopolitical risk, and elevated uncertainty and hence higher volatility. These factors may lead to greater volatility in the earnings streams of companies, due to the unpredictability of input prices and more variability in economic and business cycles. With this as the backdrop, it is reasonable to conclude that investors will develop a greater appreciation for stability and consistency in earnings over the coming years. In particular, earnings that prove to be resilient, irrespective of the broader economic environment. We see investors gravitating to less “exciting” businesses that are well run and businesses that can compound their earnings consistently through prudent capital allocation.

Our research indicates that attractive long-term risk-adjusted returns are possible if management allocates capital wisely and valuation multiples do not compress. Given the comparatively low level of business risk facing many stable companies, we believe these stocks offer a compelling risk/return profile. The low overlap of characteristics with growth, value, or traditional high-quality equities also means that a portfolio of unconventional stable companies may provide diversification relative to more traditional allocations.

What are durable businesses?

- 1) Durability: The Fund is focused on companies that have proven to be resilient in the face of uncertainty.
- 2) Disciplined: The Fund's buy/sell discipline aims to ensure that we are well-positioned to achieve the potential desired outcome through a market cycle.
- 3) Diversification: The investment process leads to a portfolio of durable companies that may potentially provide meaningful diversification relative to more traditional global equity allocations.

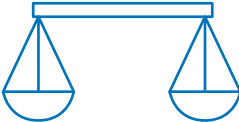

About the United Global Durable Equities Fund

The United Global Durable Equities Fund (the “Fund”), sub-managed by Wellington Management, aims to seek total return consisting of capital appreciation and income over the long term by investing primarily in equity and equity related securities of companies listed and traded on stock exchanges globally.

The Fund selects companies with stable businesses and good management practices such as cost control and skilled execution. The Fund offers good diversification benefits and risk-adjusted returns because it has a low overlap with a traditional quality-oriented portfolio. At the same time, the Fund focuses on stability for downside protection and on valuation for upside returns to navigate the challenging times ahead.

Invest in durable businesses that aim to outperform the market over time

The Fund is focused on owning a set of businesses that possess three key characteristics:

 Stable and resilient earnings that provide a foundation for long-term compounding	 A moderate valuation	 Businesses with excellent management skills that have the capacity to enhance the probability of long-term success and ultimately shareholder value

When purchased at a reasonable valuation, stable companies offer both long-term compounding and downside protection, and aim to deliver attractive returns in up and down markets.

Past performance of the Fund or UOBAM or Wellington Management is not necessarily indicative of future or likely performance of the Fund, UOBAM or Wellington Management. Upside/downside capture is a statistical measure of an investment manager’s overall performance relative to a broad market benchmark during periods of market strength and weakness. An upside capture over 100% indicates a fund has generally outperformed the benchmark during periods of positive returns for the benchmark. Meanwhile, a downside capture of less than 100% indicates that a fund has lost less than its benchmark in periods of negative returns for the benchmark.

Investors should read the Fund's prospectus, which is available and may be obtained from UOBAM or any of its appointed agents or distributors, before investing. You may wish to seek advice from a financial adviser before making a commitment to invest in any Units, and in the event that you choose not to do so, you should consider carefully whether the Fund is suitable for you. Applications for Units must be made on the application forms accompanying the Fund's prospectus.

Distributions will be made in respect of the Distribution Classes of the Fund. Distributions are based on the net asset value (NAV) per unit of the relevant Distribution Class as at the last business day of the calendar quarter or month. The making of distributions is at the absolute discretion of UOBAM and that distributions are not guaranteed. The making of any distribution shall not be taken to imply that further distributions will be made. UOBAM reserves the right to vary the frequency and/or amount of distributions. Distributions from a fund may be made out of income and/or capital gains and (if income and/or capital gains are insufficient) out of capital. Investors should also note that the declaration and/or payment of distributions (whether out of income, capital gains, capital or otherwise) may have the effect of lowering the NAV of the relevant fund. Moreover, distributions out of capital may amount to a reduction of part of your original investment and may result in reduced future returns.
